

An urgent appeal to Humanity increasingly obsessed with 'profit'.

Mother Earth is suffering from the relentless onslaught of the spiritually dead human majority for whom the word 'profit' means 'to increase your money'. To the spiritually alive minority - a person might consider his life to have been 'profitable':

*If as a child he was blessed to have good grandparents and parents - ones who set a moral foundation in his life by their own examples of generosity, morality, respect for all forms of life, and steadfast love and unity in the family circle.

*If he was fortunate to have grown-up with good siblings - ones who were generous and who freely gave their support, love, and counsel to him whenever he needed it all throughout his life.

*If as a young man he married a good wife - one who was generous, faithfull, loving, and a good mother to their children.

*If the children they made together were good - generous, respectful to their elders, happy, and loving human beings.

*If during his lifetime he found good friends - ones that remained true and loyal to him from the first day they met - until the end of his life.

*If in his life he was granted the honour of being able to help many others less fortunate than himself.

Then indeed his life might be considered to have been a truly profitable one.
