GUYANESE RESIDENT IN CANADA SHARES CONFEDERACY CONCERNS

July 17, 2010

I am a Guyanese now living in Canada. I happened to stumble on an article written by the President Corrie of the Pan-Tribal Confederacy. I was very impressed by his concern that the Guyana government is yet to proclaim the rightful place of the indigenous people. All Guyanese should be proud of the Amerindians and recognize their rightful place in Guyanese society. After all they did not leave the country in droves seeking a better life abroad. They weather the storm. They are truly nationalistic people. They are the true nation builders, they just don't run away, they just don't shy away. They have been persecuted ever since the white man landed in the new world.

This is the twenty first century. Governments have no excuse to say they didn't know what is happening in the lives of these people. One nation, One people, One destiny should truly reflect its meaning. We shall live as a nation in respect of all others rights and responsibilities. We shall work towards the unification of its society. Build a strong and vibrant society. Create a more caring and sharing society. Establish institutions that are geared towards the betterment of the Amerindians and their families. Recognize their needs, and their wants. Put them on the map of Guyana. Guyana is their land, they are not asking to get it back, they are asking to be recognized and be part of the process. Not to be left out, Not be forgotten. Last but not least, never forget their struggle.
